

Promotion & Relegation

BOWL-Relegation · GM guide

What this is

The /bowl-fantasy site — a two-tier BOWL league modeled on European pro hockey. Clubs sign and transfer players instead of relying on an NHL-style entry draft. Upper (BLUP) and Lower (BLOW) tables are linked by promotion and relegation after the playoffs.

What this is not

It is not the BOWL-Cap or BOWL-Historical entry-draft workflow. Draft Hub, Draft Eligible, and draft lottery pages are off on Relegation. Cross-league fees and the Transfer Tool are covered in the separate Cross-League Transfers GM guide.

At a glance

Bottom 2 in Upper relegated · Top 2 in Lower promoted · Combined / Upper / Lower tabs on the site ·
Signing: Prospects, Signable (18–20), Overseas Transfers, Free Agents · AI transfers via Transfer Tool; human BLUP/BLOW sales via Transfer Tool (partner approval).

Two tiers in FHM

BOWL-Relegation splits competitive play into an upper division and a lower division. On the website, use Combined, Upper, or Lower scope tabs on standings, team stats, and records.

Tier	Role
Upper (BLUP)	Top division — relegation risk at the bottom
Lower (BLOW)	Second division — promotion chase at the top

League-wide (unchanged by tier)

- One shared player pool and import-driven rosters on the site.
- Combined all-time records and league history.
- Same salary cap framework as other BOWL mounts.

Tier-scoped on the site

- Standings, schedules, and filtered team pages when you pick Upper or Lower.
- After movement, your club plays in BLUP or BLOW in the FHM save.

Under construction banner

If Upper / Lower is not live yet, use combined standings until the post-season-reset import activates separate tiers. Promotion / Relegation tracking goes live with the split.

House rules

Promotion and relegation are decided after the season playoffs, not during the regular season.

- Relegation: the bottom two teams in the Upper tier move down to the Lower tier.
- Promotion: the top two teams in the Lower tier move up to the Upper tier.
- During the season, open Promotion / Relegation in the main nav for relegation danger and promotion zone watch lists.
- Combined standings show U / L badges for each club's current tier.

Why the table matters

Unlike a draft that sends young talent to weak teams, relegation does not redistribute stars for you. Dropping a tier usually means tighter budgets, harder retention, and a longer climb back — so academy signings, transfers, and roster planning matter more. The competitive story is in the standings, not lottery odds.

No entry draft on Relegation

Draft History, Draft Eligible, Draft Hub, and the draft lottery are off on /bowl-fantasy. Add players through scouting boards, signings, trades, and transfer fees — the European club model.

Signing pages (main nav)

Page	Pool
Prospects	Age 17 and under, not on BLUP/BLOW
Signable (18–20)	Ages 18–20, no BOWL org rights
Overseas Transfers	Transfer-eligible pro rosters + PTA flags
Free Agents	No FHM team; rights holder and fee shown

Transfer-eligible leagues

BLUP, BLOW, SHL, KHL, DEL, Liiga, NL, and ELH. Juniors, NCAA, and AHL are not in the cross-league transfer workflow.

- PTA / transfer fees use the $95.5M reference cap and scale with the live cap (same as the Transfer Tool).
- KHL: player must be off contract — no PTA path while still under KHL contract.
- European UFAs age 22+: $0 fee on the UFA path.
- Human GM sellers (including BLUP/BLOW): same Transfer Tool — selling GM accepts on the site; league office publishes.

Step-by-step Transfer Tool use, proposal statuses, and the full PTA table: BOWL-Relegation-Transfers-GM.pdf (same docs/guides folder).

Season checklist

1. Know your tier (U / L) and whether you are in relegation danger or the promotion zone.
2. Plan adds through Prospects, Signable, Overseas, and Free Agents — not the entry draft.
3. Use the Transfer Tool for AI clubs and human BLUP/BLOW sellers; use commissioner trades for balanced multi-asset deals.
4. After the office publishes a move, execute it in FHM before expecting the site to match.
5. When movement is applied for the new season, confirm your club is in BLUP or BLOW in FHM.

Questions on tier placement or published moves go to the league office — not the AI clubs in the Transfer Tool.
